
Making barrios, making persons. Grass roots politics and gender change in urban Spain.

by Britt-Marie Thurén

Contents
Acknowledgements

Chapter 1. Women as neighbors. (Introduction)
   - Introduction
   - First questions
   - Short on method
   - Organization of text
   - Background
   - Time, space and gender in the barrio
   - An association meeting
   - Questions and issues
   - Overview of the book

Chapter 2. A grass roots movement in history.
   - Associational life in Spain
   - Reasons, issues and methods
   - Religious roots
   - Early and mid 1970s: heroic years
   - Early transition: glorious years
   - Transition and crisis: confusing years
   - New beginnings
   - The 1990s: withering grass roots

Chapter 3. Discourses in the movement.
   - The expansive mode of management of meaning
   - Three kinds of activists
   - Gender and age
Membership files and family
Key symbols that unite
Key symbols that separate
The key symbols of the gender order: "home-street" versus "persons"

Chapter 4. The story of Carmen.
   Carmen’s words
   Comments
   Epilogue

   Feminist debates on gender and politics
   Feminism and women in the neighborhood movement
   The Women's Structure
   Four models for women’s participation
   The barrio and the women
   Interaction in the association
   Emic questions about women’s participation
   Stories about participation
   Continuity and discontinuity in habits and roles

Chapter 6. Into, inside and out of the movement. Trajectories.
   Trajectories into and inside the movement
      Mary Luz
      Nuria
      Laura
   Trajectories out of the movement
      Mati
      Encarna
   In the eyes of a younger generation

Chapter 7. Malvarrosa did it: A dramatic story.
   The image of Malvarrosa
   The story of the four corners
   Malvarrosa now. The "new" neighborhood association
   About "politics"
   Gender and activism
   Women’s issues
   A livable barrio
Points to ponder
Epilogue

Chapter 8. Thanks to the association: A story of an "association of neighborhood women" (asociación de mujeres vecinales).
Asociación de mujeres vecinales de Benimaclet
Frustrations and limitations
The Thursday meetings
Epilogue

The post card view
A bit of history and geography
A bit of sociology and politics
The urban landscape
History of the neighborhood movement in Elda
   Nuns in La Tafalera
   A growing movement
   Transition and crisis
   New beginnings
The movement in 1994
   Relations with the PSOE and with Town Hall
   Sociable events
   Movement structure and material conditions in 1994
Issues on the agenda
   The bakers
   The freeway access
Women’s participation in the Elda movement
   Women in barrio associations
   Women in the federation
   The women’s commission
Elda women and their work
A wide conceptualization of "home"
Eight years later

Chapter 10. Linares: women in a male company town.
A bit of history and geography
The Santana story
A bit of sociology and urban characteristics
My broken toe
Meeting Francisca
Women in the Linares movement
Meeting Loli
Linares, the women and me
Epilogue

Chapter 11. Vigo: women pouring out of the home.
   The city of Vigo
   History of movement
   Women’s participation in the movement
   A literacy class
   Another point of view
   A third point of view – Galician matriarchy?
   Transcending equality/separatism
   Epilogue

   Some history and geography
   Sociology and space
   The Cordovan neighborhood movement
   The Cordovan model of participatory democracy
   The movement and Cordovan society
   Women’s participation in the movement
      Peñas
      Feminism, new groups and a councilor
      Women in the barrios
      Some who tried
   A dual movement
   Epilogue

Chapter 13. Movement characteristics and the gender order.
   Town portraits, a summary
   Traits of social movements
   Generalizable model or historical specificity?
   Pillar’s words
   Movement traits as they affect gender
   Power, gender and cultural negotiations
   Changes between 1994 and 2002
   Women’s impact on the neighborhood movement
   Women becoming persons
   Women’s ”non-political” choices
   Building bridges, digging tunnels
   Not-home, not-street
   Current social processes that affect the relationship between the movement and the gender order
   A feminist conclusion

Glossary
References

Appendix I: Fieldwork, background, reflections.
   Beginnings
   Main fieldwork period
   Revisits
   Choices in fieldwork
   Self-reflection
   Fieldwork and norms of interaction
   Choices in writing

Appendix II: History of the neighborhood movement in Madrid according to its federation, FRAVM.